SCORE OF CITIES INVESTIGATE EXECUTIVES

Storm Sweeps Over Entire Pacific Northwest

LEAVES TRAIL OF DAMAGE AND DESTRUCTION

HEAVIEST TOLL IS TAKEN IN OREGON AND WASHINGTON

COMMUNICATION IS DISRUPTED, SMALL FLAMES FANNED INTO MANY FIRES

San Francisco, April 23.—(U.P.)—A storm that swept over the Nevada desert and spread over the entire Pacific northwest was gradually spending its force today, leaving a trail of damage and destruction behind it.

The storm took its heaviest toll in Oregon and Washington, where communication arteries were disrupted, small flames were fanned into numerous fires and transportation facilities were impeded.

Atmospheric conditions in southern Nevada, where a steadily falling barometer was noted, were blamed by weather officials here as the cause of the storm. While the storm shifted to the southeast, gales swept the Sierras and winds of varying velocities up to 50 miles an hour blew up the coast toward Canada.

A heavy dust storm centered around Arlington, Ore., and Walla Walla and Pasco, Wash., and descended upon Portland in the form of a huge yellow cloud that enveloped everything in its path. Hundreds of small fires throughout the northwest were reported in the wake of the miniature tornado, which also blew down trees, houses and buildings.

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 23.—A mile a minute gale which whipped across central Utah and southwestern Wyoming last night leaving widespread destruction in its wake, had moderated only slightly today.

It was the worst wind storm in Salt Lake since 1874. At times the velocity crept up to 70 miles.

Roofs were wrenched off houses, automobiles literally blown off the Salt Lake-Ogden highway and signs torn from their fastenings. Heavy crop damage was sustained in the Centerville, Utah, district. Hundreds of acres of newly planted vegetables were laid bare.

Communications were disrupted between Salt Lake and Ogden. Lights were out for some time in both cities last night.

Many homes were damaged when big trees were uprooted and toppled onto roofs of adjoining houses. Streets and highways were strewn with tree branches, shattered bill boards, shingles from unroofed homes and other debris.

Denver, Colo., April 23.—Rain and snow, driven by strong winds, prevailed today throughout most of the Rocky Mountain region.

Storm conditions were general in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico, with forecasters predicting a continuance tomorrow.

Denver had snow late yesterday and the fall continued intermittently during the night, with the temperature falling to near 20 degrees.

In Wyoming and Montana, temperatures were reported comparatively high, but the fall of snow was said to be heavier than in Colorado. Conditions in New Mexico were unsettled.

Los Angeles, April 23.—An unbroken drought of 67 days was relieved in the metropolitan area last night when a light rain fell. Local showers were predicted for today and Friday. The last rain fell in Southern California Feb. 14.

FRACTURES SKULL WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

Minneapolis, April 23.—(U.P.)—Morris Woodhouse, 45, Minneapolis, died today from a fractured skull received when his automobile overturned 16 miles north of the city. Woodhouse was unconscious when found and died after being brought to the General hospital here.

Dr. Albert A. Michelson Reported 'Very Weak'

Pasadena, Calif., April 23.—(U.P.)—Dr. Albert A. Michelson, 79, noted scientist, who has been seriously ill at his home here for several weeks, was reported "very weak" today by his physician, Dr. Willard J. Stone. Dr. Michelson suffered a nervous breakdown during long experiments in the speed of light recently.

TWO PLANES COLLIDE IN AIR; TWO KILLED

Seahurst Park, Sussex, England, April 23.—(U.P.)—A plane carrying Air Vice-marshal Felton Vesey Holt and Flight Lt. Henry M. Moody collided in the air with another plane today and crashed, killing both officers.

ENTIRE BUSINESS BLOCK IN TOWN OF YUKON, PA., BURNS

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 23.—(U.P.)—An entire business block in the town of Yukon, near here, lay in ruins today after a disastrous fire.

The fire started in the Lyric theatre. More than 130 persons in the theatre at the time got to the street safely. A billiard room, a barber shop, a residence, a drug store and a general store were destroyed. Loss was estimated at $100,000.

MASSSED ATTACK OF REVOLUTIONISTS MADE IN HONDURAS

GOVERNMENT CLAIMS TO HAVE REFUSED THEM AT CHAMELECON

REINFORCEMENTS SPEEDED TO PROTECT RAIL LINE TO SAN PEDRO SULA

(Copyright, 1931, by United Press)

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, April 23.—The government claimed today to have repulsed a massed attack of revolutionary forces in a desperate battle at Chamelecon.

The fighting continued, however, in the heart of the Cortes region of northern Honduras, and loyalist reinforcements were speeding to the scene to protect the highly important railroad line to San Pedro Sula.

Government troops inflicted "great losses" on the rebels, the official advisers said, and it was believed the outcome of the engagement might be of a decisive character.

The engagement at Chamelecon was resumed at 10 A. M. on Wednesday after unsuccessful attacks had been made there and at Guaymas, five miles from Tela, the night before.

More than a score of rebels and a smaller number of loyalists were killed in the earlier engagements, but the casualties were heavier with resumption of fighting at Chamelecon.

The first night attack on Chamelecon, regarded as a key city on the road to the flourishing city of San Pedro Sula and Tegucigalpa, lasted three hours. Rebel troops under the command of General Justo Umana, made repeated advances toward the federal defense forces, but were turned back each time and finally forced to retire about midnight.

The government troops under Col. Alfredo Reina suffered some casualties and reported the fighting "very severe."

Ten hours later the attack was resumed with such determination that it was apparent the chief immediate objective of the revolutionary forces in San Pedro Sula. The second attack was as strong or stronger than the first but was unsuccessful at the time of the last official advances, which said "the resistance continues."

Colonel Reina and Col. David Tablada were in command of the defense of the railroad city. They said the government troops were barricaded inside Chamelecon and were causing great losses to the rebels. They said it was impossible to explore the battlefield for the purpose of making an accurate estimate of casualties.

Reinforcements ordered to Chamelecon were en route by land and water. The engagement at Guaymas, near the seaport of Tela where American residents have been protected by the U. S. S. Memphis, lasted about three hours and resulted in defeat of the revolutionists, with the loss of Col. Salvador Canales, their leader, and about 15 of his men. The federalists lost four, including Capt. Constantino Urbina, and ten were wounded.

The fighting was sharp, according to a message sent to President Vincente Mejia Colindres by Undersecretary of War Santon Pineda, who is now in the rebel zone directing operations.

Government circles have admitted that the powerful Gen. Gregorio Ferrera, former presidential candidate, is supreme head of the revolutionary movement, although he has not yet openly shown his hand.

Attorneys Discuss Affairs of Dempsey and His Wife

Los Angeles, April 23.—(U.P.)—Although attorneys for Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor discussed the marital affairs of the pair by telephone between Reno and Los Angeles, they declined to divulge details of the conference today.

It was understood here, however, that Miss Taylor will file suit for divorce here within a few days. She began work today in a film with Ronald Colman.

Gov. Olson May Call Special Session if Veto of Reapportionment Measure Held Valid

METROPOLITAN SEWAGE BILL MAY BE UP TOO

CONG. HAROLD KNUTSON FILES FOR RENOMINATION ON REPUBLICAN TICKET

PETITION OF EMIL E. HOLMES FOR CONGRESSMAN AT LARGE IS REFUSED

St. Paul, Minn., April 23.—(U.P.)—If the state courts hold valid his veto of the reapportionment bill passed by both houses of the legislature, Governor Floyd B. Olson may call a special session, it was said on his behalf today.

Since no limitation can be placed on measures considered at a special session, the proposal revives the possibility of reconsideration for the metropolitan sewage bill, the statewide boxing bill and many others that failed to pass in the session which adjourned Wednesday.

The governor cited Article LV, Section 12 of the Minnesota state constitution in support of his arguments that the courts would hold there had been no reapportionment of the state and that his veto was effective.

On the governor's behalf it was said that he was considering "very seriously" calling the special session if the courts so hold.

Two filings which probably will furnish the basis for the contest of the redistricting plan approved by the legislature have been made to the office of Mike Holm, secretary of state. One was accepted and the other—congressman-at-large—was refused.

The petition of Congressman Harold Knutson, St. Cloud, for re-nomination on the republican ticket in 1932 was accepted by the secretary of state's office. The petition for Emil E. Holmes, Minneapolis, for the office of congressman-at-large in 1932 was refused.

The section of the state constitution cited by the governor reads:

"Every order, resolution or vote requiring concurrence of the two houses (except such as relate to the business or adjournment of the same) shall be presented to the governor for his signature, and, before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or, being returned by him with his objections, shall be repassed by a two-thirds majority of the members of the two houses, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill."

Under the law, no limitations may be placed on the matters brought up at a special session. It was pointed out, however, that the legislators might, by resolution over which the governor would have no control, restrict the business to be taken up.

No limitation would be imposed on the length of the extra session. Legislators would serve without pay, receiving only mileage.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 23.—(U.P.)—George T. Simpson, former state attorney general, today was retained by a group of Minneapolis taxpayers who plan to test the validity of the reapportionment measure passed by the legislature and vetoed by the governor.

The taxpayers were undecided whether to file their suit in Hennepin or Ramsey county courts. Regardless of the outcome, the group will seek a review of the entire matter, carrying the case to the United States supreme court if necessary.

Attacks on the measure were based on unconstitutionality, unfairness and illegality.

SEEK TO SETTLE PITCHING HONORS BY GUN BATTLE

Kansas City, Mo., April 23.—(U.P.)—Tony Orlando, 17, wanted to pitch that ball game on the neighborhood lot; so did Lawrence Tuso, 17. They elected to settle it with guns, after a fist fight failed to produce a decision.

Tony had pitched the first game of a double header, and Lawrence thought it was nothing but fair that he have a turn on the mound. Tony thought otherwise.

After they fought, Orlando went home and returned shortly with a gun. Lawrence said he dodged four shots. He, too, went home for a similar purpose, but returned to find Orlando absent and the police in charge.

Lawrence was released after he was questioned. Tony was sought by officers today.

OKLAHOMA ENACTS LAW TO STERILIZE HABITUAL CRIMINALS

Oklahoma City, April 23.—(U.P.)—The state board of affairs had authority today to order the sterilization of insane inmates in state institutions and habitual criminals in the state penal institutions.

A bill passed by the 13th legislature has been signed by Gov. W. H. Murray, the governor said today.

The law was written by Dr. J. T. Gray, Stillwater, a representative. It provided for sterilization of men under the age of 67 and women under the age of 47 in state hospitals. The senate amended the measure so that it applied to habitual criminals in any state institution.

The patient will be subject to a medical board for examination, the state board of affairs then orders the operation. The patient can appeal to the district court through a guardian.

Governor Murray said he would favor a more strict application of the law to criminal classes than to insane patients.

CAPTAIN HAWKS SMASHES TWO EUROPEAN MARKS

SETS RECORD LONDON TO ROME IN 5 HOURS AND 22 MINUTES

ALSO LE BOURGET TO CROYDON AND HESTON AIR-DROMES

By VIRGIL PINKLEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Heston Air-drome, England, April 23.—Captain Frank Hawks, the American flier, arrived from France today, smashing two more European records to finish off his two days of flight between London and Rome.

An official announcement said the American speed flier, who yesterday set a new mark of five hours and 22 minutes from London to Rome, had broken two records on his flight from Paris to London. Flying from Le Bourget, near Paris, he reached Croydon air-drome in 55 minutes to break the 96 minute mark recently set by Commander Glen-Kidston, and then continued to Heston air-drome to set a new record of 59 minutes.

Hawks arrived here at 12:51 P. M. Hawks revealed that he had "almost passed out" while flying at a great altitude over the Alps en route to Rome yesterday because he had no oxygen to aid him in flying at great altitudes.

"That would have meant I was done for," he commented with a smile as he told of the incident.

WIFE AND KIN OF DR. KELLEY SEEK TO LOCATE HIM

WILL NOT SPARE FORTUNES TO MEET KIDNAPERS' RANSOM DEMAND

DR. KELLEY OF ST. LOUIS MISSING SINCE MONDAY, CALLED OUT ON FALSE CASE

St. Louis, April 23.—(U.P.)—Dr. Isaac D. Kelley's millionaire wife and wealthy relatives today sought a way in which their fortunes might be used to locate the kidnapped physician.

Kelley, socially and professionally prominent, has been missing since 10 P. M. Monday when he was called from his home on a false emergency case.

While Mrs. Kelley gave tacit aid to police in their efforts to locate the ear and nose specialist, from sources close to her it was learned that she considered "no ransom demand exorbitant" if her husband would be returned unharmed.

Meanwhile a picked squad of 50 city detectives worked on the baffling case, but no meagre were clues that the last 24 hours were spent searching for oily roads. In Kelley's car, found 12 hours after his disappearance, were the oily footprints of two men.

The physician's wife, a daughter of the late W. C. McBride, multi-millionaire oil man, was breaking under the strain of her vigil. She had hoped that the abductors would advise her before today of their ransom demand.

Kelley's young daughters, Anne, 6; Mary Ellen, 4, played about the beautiful stone mansion. They were too young to realize the danger their father was in.

Six police characters were under arrest as suspects, and a further roundup continued today. Those held were Herman Tipton, Cuckoo gang leader; Patrick Conway, Caseyville, Ill.; Leo Casey, roadhouse proprietor; Timothy McAuliffe, gangster; Eugene Kebeau and Edward "Cockey" Leonard, once a suspect in a Kansas City kidnapping case.

The French superior would exist because Italy was not believed likely to be ready to take advantage of permission to increase her building program, due to economic reasons and to the fact that many observers interpreted the proposal as nullifying the purpose of the accord, which is naval limitation.

It was said the new viewpoint would automatically pave the way for resumption of the European naval building race, which was threatened prior to England's intervention to bring France and Italy to an agreement and which caused Britain to indicate she would employ the escalator clause of the London naval treaty to increase her own naval strength.

Paris, April 23.—(U.P.)—Authoritative sources said today that Rene Massial, the French naval expert, carried proposals to London suggesting that France and Italy readjust the period in which there would be no construction of naval units for reconstruction of old ships.

It was understood the French desired to permit replacement reconstruction after July 1, 1934, with both countries at liberty to replace aged units until expiration of the accord January 1, 1936.

Authorized to Abandon Part of Its Rail Line

Washington, April 23.—(U.P.)—The Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad company was authorized today by the Interstate Commerce commission to abandon part of a branch line in Sawyer county, Wisconsin.

The branch extends about 32 miles northeast of Cameron on the main line between Minneapolis and Sault Ste. Marie. It was built to serve lumber interests and the need for this service has largely disappeared, it was said.

Washington, April 23.—(U.P.)—The Infanta Isabelle of Spain, aunt of the exiled King Alfonso, died today. She was 79 years old and had been in feeble health.

Democrat National Committee in Drive to Raise a Million

New York, April 23.—(U.P.)—The democratic national committee made plans today for a drive for $1,000,000 to place the party in a solvent condition.

At a conference attended by former Governor Alfred E. Smith, J. P. J. Shouse, executive committee chairman, and John J. Raskob, national chairman, in the latter's office, action was started to obtain funds to wipe out the $650,000 party deficit and to provide money to keep the committee functioning actively.

Shouse said that his trip to the west coast disclosed to him the "secent of democratic victory in 1932," and said it was agreed to begin the drive as soon as possible.

LOOKS UNDER HER BED AS USUAL—AND FINDS MAN

Minneapolis, April 23.—(U.P.)—Proceeding as she had done for years, Miss J. B. Bettie looked under her bed last night to make sure no one was there before she went to sleep. To her surprise she found—a man. In the excitement during which police and firemen were called, the intruder escaped.

FRANCO-ITALIAN NAVAL PACT WORK IS BREAKING DOWN

FRANCE SENDS NOTE, VIRTUALLY ULTIMATUM, TO ENGLAND AND ITALY

EXPLAINS HER POSITION IN REGARD TO NEGOTIATIONS UNDER WAY

By HENRY T. RUSSELL (United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, April 23.—The Franco-Italian negotiations for final drafting of a naval limitations agreement were reliably reported today to be moving toward a breakdown.

Announcement that France had sent a note—virtually an ultimatum—to England and Italy explaining her position in regard to the negotiations was authoritatively interpreted as a forerunner of collapse of the conversations here or, at the best, the conclusion of a relatively valueless "face-saving" agreement.

The new French proposals and explanation were communicated to the Italian government and, meanwhile, the committee of experts suspended activities until the proposals are discussed by the full committee.

Although the French note was courteous, it was described as "virtually an ultimatum," inasmuch as it proposed that the experts continue their work with an entirely new point of view, which was not likely to meet with the favor of either Britain or Italy.

Indirectly, the French demand again raised the old question of Franco-Italian naval parity by asking the experts to insert a clause in the agreement whereby France could begin laying the keels for new ships to replace obsolete ships in the first months of 1934, rather than after the next naval conference.

Although the concession also would apply to Italy, acceptance of the proposal would result in considerable French superiority over Italy in 1936. It was said that this superiority would be in new ships in addition to the superiority in obsolete tonnage which Italy agreed upon previously—and to which many French observers objected as insufficient.

The French superiority would exist because Italy was not believed likely to be ready to take advantage of permission to increase her building program, due to economic reasons and to the fact that many observers interpreted the proposal as nullifying the purpose of the accord, which is naval limitation.

It was said the new viewpoint would automatically pave the way for resumption of the European naval building race, which was threatened prior to England's intervention to bring France and Italy to an agreement and which caused Britain to indicate she would employ the escalator clause of the London naval treaty to increase her own naval strength.

Paris, April 23.—(U.P.)—Authoritative sources said today that Rene Massial, the French naval expert, carried proposals to London suggesting that France and Italy readjust the period in which there would be no construction of naval units for reconstruction of old ships.

At San Diego, Cal., George Moulton, former San Diego county assessor, was found guilty yesterday of charges of embezzlement of $25,000 of public funds. There will be a recall election there May 17 against County Supervisor E. A. Hornbeck, accused of extravagance and incompetency. The mayor and one city councilman recently were defeated for re-election in a clean government campaign.

SOME INDICTED, SOME JAILED, OTHERS OUSTED

CHARGES OF GRAFT, MISFEASANCE, NEGLECT OF DUTY, INEFFICIENCY

UNITED PRESS MAKES A COUNTRY-WIDE SURVEY INTO CONDITIONS

(Copyright, 1931, by United Press)

New York, April 23.—Official conduct of executives in a score or more of American cities is under investigation with some indictments already returned, some officials already jailed and others facing ouster charges, a United Press survey today showed.

Charges of graft, misfeasance, neglect of duty and inefficiency are included in the briefs drawn against officials in cities scattered from the Pacific to the Atlantic coasts and from Chicago to the Gulf.

A demand has gone to Governor Roosevelt for removal of Mayor James J. Walker of New York City on charges of misfeasance. A legislative investigation body has been assigned to inquire into affairs of the city administration and already hearings are under way on the fitness of District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain to hold office. Police have been dismissed in connection with charges that they "framed" innocent girls on prostitution charges. Two patrolmen have been found guilty of perjury. Alleged rackets are under survey of grand juries.

In the nation's second largest city—Chicago—a special grand jury is investigating bank accounts of policemen "from Commissioner John J. Alcock down." Already 237 banks have been ordered to send in records of the bank accounts of 17 police captains. One police captain whose annual salary is $4,000 is to be questioned over the fact that he has banked $100,000.

Public hearings start today in Los Angeles into charges that the general hospital is inefficiently administered by Dr. N. N. Wood after detectives under direction of Supervisor Frank L. Shaw are alleged to have discovered that hospital supplies totaling $500,000 had been taken by employees. Shaw resigned from the public welfare committee when a motion for dismissal of Wood failed to carry.

Near Los Angeles there is a fight on after dismissal of Dr. K. J. Scudder, superintendent of Whittier school for boys, a state reformatory. Friends have rallied to Scudder's aid.

State Treasurer Larry Brunk of Missouri awaits impeachment trial on a charge of misappropriating $2,700 of state money and accepting $10,000 in connection with approval of questionable bonds as security for state bonds. State Representative E. L. Britain also is charged with accepting a $500 bribe from Brunk to influence the house committee which investigated Brunk's activities. State Representative Clifford Bent of St. Louis is accused of forging the name of a house of representatives clerk to a payroll warrant, and awaits trial.

At Portland, Ore., a grand jury for more than a month has investigated gambling allegedly under police protection but no indictments have been returned.

At Racine, Wis., William Armstrong, for 10 years republican mayor, withdrew from the campaign and helped elect a socialist mayor. This came after a taxpayers' suit charged Armstrong was the William Dee Company from which the city purchased foundry castings. The suit has not been settled.

A grand jury is expected soon to begin investigation of the Detroit police department against which many charges have been made since the slaying of Jerry Buckley, radio announcer.

In Boston, Oliver B. Garrett, former head of the police liquor squad, goes on trial next month for the third time on charges of extortion and conspiracy to extort money from a hotel proprietor. Two previous trials ended in hung juries. Garrett's wife and a former checkroom attendant at the hotel also are accused.

Testimony brought out was that Garrett's salary was $40 weekly but that in the course of a few years he banked more than $122,000.

At San Diego, Cal., George Moulton, former San Diego county assessor, was found guilty yesterday of charges of embezzlement of $25,000 of public funds. There will be a recall election there May 17 against County Supervisor E. A. Hornbeck, accused of extravagance and incompetency. CONG. HAROLD KNUXTON FILES FOR RENOMINATION ON REPUBLICAN TICKET

St. Paul, Minn., April 23.—(U.P.)—If the state courts hold valid his veto of the reapportionment bill passed by both houses of the legislature, Governor Floyd B. Olson may call a special session, it was said on his behalf today.

Since no limitation can be placed on measures considered at a special session, the proposal revives the possibility of reconsideration for the metropolitan sewage bill, the statewide boxing bill and many others that failed to pass in the session which adjourned Wednesday.

The governor cited Article LV, Section 12 of the Minnesota state constitution in support of his arguments that the courts would hold there had been no reapportionment of the state and that his veto was effective.

On the governor's behalf it was said that he was considering "very seriously" calling the special session if the courts so hold.

Two fillings which probably will furnish the basis for the contest of the redistricting plan approved by the legislature have been made to the office of Mike Holm, secretary of state. One was accepted and the other for congressman-at-large was refused.

The petition of Congressman Harold Knutson, St. Cloud, for renomination on the republican ticket in 1932 was accepted by the secretary of state's office. The petition for Emil E. Holmes, Minneapolis, for the office of congressman-at-large in 1932 was refused.

The section of the state constitution cited by the governor reads:

"Every order, resolution or vote requiring concurrence of the two houses (except such as relate to the business or adjournment of the same) shall be presented to the governor for his signature, and, before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being returned by him with his objections, shall be repassed by a two-thirds majority of the members of the two houses, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill."

Under the law, no limitations may be placed on the matters brought up at a special session. It was pointed out, however, that the legislators might, by resolution over which the governor would have no control, restrict the business to be taken up.

No limitation would be imposed on the length of the extra session. Legislators would serve without pay, receiving only mileage.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 23.—(U.P.)—George T. Simpson, former state attorney general, today was retained by a group of Minneapolis taxpayers who plan to test the validity of the reapportionment measure passed by the legislature and vetoed by the governor.

The taxpayers were undecided whether to file their suit in Hennepin or Ramsey county courts. Regardless of the outcome, the group will seek a review of the entire matter, carrying the case to the United States supreme court if necessary.

Attacks on the measure were based on unconstitutionality, unfairness and illegality.

SEEK TO SETTLE PITCHING HONORS BY GUN BATTLE

Kansas City, Mo., April 23.—(U.P.)—Tony Orlando, 17, wanted to pitch that ball game on the neighborhood lot; so did Lawrence Tuso, 17. They elected to settle it with guns, after a fist fight failed to produce a decision.

Tony had pitched the first game of a double header, and Lawrence thought it was nothing but fair that he have a turn on the mound. Tony thought otherwise.

After they fought, Orlando went home and returned shortly with a gun. Lawrence said he dodged four shots. He, too, went home for a similar purpose, but returned to find Orlando absent and the police in charge.

Lawrence was released after he was questioned. Tony was sought by officers today.

OKLAHOMA ENACTS LAW TO STERILIZE HABITUAL CRIMINALS

Oklahoma City, April 23.—(U.P.)—The state board of affairs had authority today to order the sterilization of insane inmates in state institutions and habitual criminals in the state penal institutions.

A bill passed by the 13th legislature has been signed by Gov. W. H. Murray, the governor said today.

The law was written by Dr. J. T. Gray, Stillwater, a representative. It provided for sterilization of men under the age of 67 and women under the age of 47 in state hospitals. The senate amended the measure so that it applied to habitual criminals in any state institution.

The patient will be subject to a medical board for examination, the state board of affairs then orders the operation. The patient can appeal to the district court through a guardian.

Governor Murray said he would favor a more strict application of the law to criminal classes than to insane patients.

CAPTAIN HAWKS SMASHES TWO EUROPEAN MARKS

SETS RECORD LONDON TO ROME IN 5 HOURS AND 22 MINUTES

ALSO LE BOURGET TO CROYDON AND HESTON AIR-DROMES

By VIRGIL PINKLEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Heston Air-drome, England, April 23.—Captain Frank Hawks, the American flier, arrived from France today, smashing two more European records to finish off his two days of flight between London and Rome.

An official announcement said the American speed flier, who yesterday set a new mark of five hours and 22 minutes from London to Rome, had broken two records on his flight from Paris to London.

Flying from Le Bourget, near Paris, he reached Croydon air-drome in 55 minutes to break the 56 minute mark recently set by Commander Glen-Kidston, and then continued to Heston air-drome to set a new record of 59 minutes.

Hawks arrived here at 12:51 P. M. Hawks revealed that he had "almost passed out" while flying at a great altitude over the Alps en route to Rome yesterday because he had no oxygen to aid him in flying at great altitudes.

"That would have meant I was done for," he commented with a smile as he told of the incident.

WIFE AND KIN OF DR. KELLEY SEEK TO LOCATE HIM

WILL NOT SPARE FORTUNES TO MEET KIDNAPERS' RANSOM DEMAND

DR. KELLEY OF ST. LOUIS MISSING SINCE MONDAY, CALLED OUT ON FALSE CASE

St. Louis, April 23.—(U.P.)—Dr. Isaac D. Kelley's millionaire wife and wealthy relatives today sought a way in which their fortunes might be used to locate the kidnapped physician.

Kelley, socially and professionally prominent, has been missing since 10 P. M. Monday when he was called from his home on a false emergency case.

While Mrs. Kelley gave tacit aid to police in their efforts to locate the ear and nose specialist, from sources close to her it was learned that she considered "no ransom demand exorbitant" if her husband would be returned unharmed.

Meanwhile a picked squad of 50 city detectives worked on the baffling case, but so meagre were clues that the last 24 hours were spent searching for oily roads. In Kelley's car, found 12 hours after his disappearance, were the oily footprints of two men.

The physician's wife, a daughter of the late W. C. McBride, multi-millionaire oil man, was breaking under the strain of her vigil. She had hoped that the abductors would advise her before today of their ransom demand.

Kelley's young daughters, Anne, 6; Mary Ellen, 4; played about the beautiful stone mansion. They were too young to realize the danger their father was in.

Six police characters were under arrest as suspects, and a further roundup continued today. Those held were Herman Tipton, Cuckoo gang leader; Patrick Conway, Caseyville, Ill.; Leo Casey, roadhouse proprietor; Timothy McAuliffe, gangster; Eugene Rebeau and Edward "Cocky" Leonard, once a suspect in a Kansas City kidnapping case.

The six suspects were released today, due to lack of evidence against them.

The St. Louis Medical society was on record with a resolution condemning the kidnapping case as a "frightful crime," and offered its support to Mrs. Kelley in any way possible. The resolution called attention to the seriousness of such a kidnapping. Dr. Kelley's numerous patients, whose cases he alone was familiar with, were assigned to various colleagues.

Authorized to Abandon Part of Its Rail Line

Washington, April 23.—(U.P.)—The Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad company was authorized today by the Interstate Commerce commission to abandon part of a branch line in Sawyer county, Wisconsin.

The branch extends about 42 miles northeast of Cameron on the main line between Minneapolis and Sault Ste. Marie. It was built to serve lumber interests and the need for this service has largely disappeared, it was said.

Paris, April 23.—(U.P.)—Authoritative sources said today that Rene Massial, the French naval expert, carried proposals to London suggesting that France and Italy readjust the period in which there would be no construction of naval units for reconstruction of old ships.

It was understood the French desired to permit replacement reconstruction after July 1, 1934, with both countries at liberty to replace aged units until expiration of the accord January 1, 1936.

Democratic National Committee in Drive to Raise a Million

New York, April 23.—(U.P.)—The democratic national committee made plans today for a drive for $1,000,000 to place the party in a solvent condition.

At a conference attended by former Governor Alfred E. Smith, J. P. J. Shouse, executive committee chairman, and John J. Raskob, national chairman, in the latter's office, action was started to obtain funds to wipe out the $650,000 party deficit and to provide money to keep the committee functioning actively.

Shouse said that his trip to the west coast disclosed to him the "scent of democratic victory in 1932," and said it was agreed to begin the drive as soon as possible.

LOOKS UNDER HER BED AS USUAL—AND FINDS MAN

Minneapolis, April 23.—(U.P.)—Proceeding as she had done for years, Miss J. B. Bettie looked under her bed last night to make sure no one was there before she went to sleep. To her surprise she found—a man. In the excitement during which police and firemen were called, the intruder escaped.

SOME INDICTED, SOME JAILED, OTHERS OUSTED

CHARGES OF GRAFT, MISFEASANCE, NEGLIGENCE OF DUTY, INEFFICIENCY

UNITED PRESS MAKES A COUNTRY-WIDE SURVEY INTO CONDITIONS

(Copyright, 1931, by United Press)

New York, April 23.—Official conduct of executives in a score or more of American cities is under investigation with some indictments already returned, some officials already jailed and others facing ouster charges, a United Press survey today showed.

Charges of graft, misfeasance, neglect of duty and inefficiency are included in the briefs drawn against officials in cities scattered from the Pacific to the Atlantic coasts and from Chicago to the Gulf.

A demand has gone to Governor Roosevelt for removal of Mayor James J. Walker of New York City on charges of misfeasance. A legislative investigation body has been assigned to inquire into affairs of the city administration and already hearings are under way on the fitness of District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain to hold office. Police have been dismissed in connection with charges that they "framed" innocent girls on prostitution charges. Two patrolmen have been found guilty of perjury. Alleged rackets are under survey of grand juries.

In the nation's second largest city—Chicago—a special grand jury is investigating bank accounts of policemen "from Commissioner John J. Alcock down." Already 237 banks have been ordered to send in records of the bank accounts of 17 police captains. One police captain whose annual salary is $4,000 is to be questioned over the fact that he has banked $100,000.

Public hearings start today in Los Angeles into charges that the general hospital is inefficiently administered by Dr. N. N. Wood after detectives under direction of Supervisor Frank L. Shaw are alleged to have discovered that hospital supplies totaling $500,000 had been taken by employees. Shaw resigned from the public welfare committee when a motion for dismissal of Wood failed to carry.

Near Los Angeles there is a fight on after dismissal of Dr. K. J. Scudder, superintendent of Whittier school for boys, a state reformatory. Friends have rallied to Scudder's aid.

State Treasurer Larry Brunk of Missouri awaits impeachment trial on a charge of misappropriating $2,700 of state money and accepting $10,000 in connection with approval of questionable bonds as security for state bonds. State Representative E. L. Britain also is charged with accepting a $400 bribe from Brunk to influence the house committee which investigated Brunk's activities. State Representative Clifford Rens of St. Louis is accused of forging the name of a house of representatives clerk to a payroll warrant, and awaits trial.

At Portland, Ore., a grand jury for more than a month has investigated gambling allegedly under police protection but no indictments have been returned.

At Racine, Wis., William Armstrong, for 10 years republican mayor, withdrew from the campaign and helped elect a socialist mayor. This came after a taxpayers' suit charged Armstrong with the William Dee Company from which the city purchased foundry castings. The suit has not been settled.

A grand jury is expected soon to begin investigation of the Detroit police department against which many charges have been made since the slaying of Jerry Buckley, radio announcer.

In Boston, Oliver B. Garrett, former head of the police liquor squad, goes on trial next month for the third time on charges of extortion and conspiracy to extort money from a hotel proprietor. Two previous trials ended in hung juries. Garrett's wife and a former checkroom attendant at the hotel also are accused. Among the testimony brought out was that Garrett's salary was $40 weekly but that in the course of a few years he banked more than $122,000.

At San Diego, Cal., George Moulton, former San Diego county assessor, was found guilty yesterday of charges of embezzlement of $25,000 of public funds. There will be a recall election there May 17 against County Supervisor E. A. Hornbeck, accused of extravagance and incompetency. The mayor and one city councilman recently were defeated for re-election in a clean government campaign.

A Minneapolis grand jury is investigating charges that police protected vice and racketeering, while in St. Paul a grand jury is hearing charges that the Griswold Traffic Signal Company had to pay commissions to politicians to get St. Paul business.

The Pittsburgh city council is investigating charges of "fraud and inefficiency" against the department of public works since former Controller Henry O. Evans claimed $1,100,000 had been wasted in three years on 78 paving contracts.

A hearing is being conducted in Youngstown, O., on charges preferred against a city official.

FRANCO-ITALIAN NAVAL PACT WORK IS BREAKING DOWN

FRANCE SENDS NOTE, VIRTUALLY ULTIMATUM, TO ENGLAND AND ITALY

EXPLAINS HER POSITION IN REGARD TO NEGOTIATIONS UNDER WAY

By HENRY T. RUSSELL (United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, April 23.—The Franco-Italian negotiations for final drafting of a naval limitations agreement were reliably reported today to be moving toward a breakdown.

Announcement that France had sent a note—virtually an ultimatum—to England and Italy explaining her position in regard to the negotiations was authoritatively interpreted as a forerunner of collapse of the conversations here or, at the best, the conclusion of a relatively valueless "face-saving" agreement.

The new French proposals and explanation were communicated to the Italian government and, meanwhile, the committee of experts suspended activities until the proposals are discussed by the full committee.

Although the French note was courteous, it was described as "virtually an ultimatum," inasmuch as it proposed that the experts continue their work with an entirely new point of view, which was not likely to meet with the favor of either Britain or Italy.

Indirectly, the French demand again raised the old question of Franco-Italian naval parity by asking the experts to insert a clause in the agreement whereby France could begin laying the keels for new ships to replace obsolete ships in the first months of 1934, rather than after the next naval conference.

Although the concession also would apply to Italy, acceptance of the proposal would result in considerable French superiority over Italy in 1936. It was said that this superiority would be in new ships in addition to the superiority in obsolete tonnage which Italy agreed upon previously—and to which many French observers objected as insufficient.

The French superiority would exist because Italy was not believed likely to be ready to take advantage of permission to increase her building program, due to economic reasons and to the fact that many observers interpreted the proposal as nullifying the purpose of the accord, which is naval limitation.

It was said the new viewpoint would automatically pave the way for resumption of the European naval building race, which was threatened prior to England's intervention to bring France and Italy to an agreement and which caused Britain to indicate she would employ the escalator clause of the London naval treaty to increase her own naval strength.

Paris, April 23.—(U.P.)—Authoritative sources said today that Rene Massial, the French naval expert, carried proposals to London suggesting that France and Italy readjust the period in which there would be no construction of naval units for reconstruction of old ships.

It was understood the French desired to permit replacement reconstruction after July 1, 1934, with both countries at liberty to replace aged units until expiration of the accord January 1, 1936.

BRAINERD 25 Years Ago

April 23, 1906

The boom company had troubles of its own yesterday. The logs from the Aitkin and Pine River drives are beginning to come down rapidly and a jam formed above the bridge at the dam. It required the efforts of a crew of 20 drivers to break the jam and keep the logs running through the sluices without jamming.

The Mississippi Launch club plans to show the people of Brainerd a good time this summer. They have purchased eight launches which run on the Mississippi above the dam and will also have other boats. It is the intention of the club to give monthly excursions in which the entire fleet will unite and will carry a string band and erect a dancing pavilion at or near Mission Lake where the day will be spent. The Sea Gull and the new steamer completed late last fall by Mahlon Mayo are the two largest boats in the fleet and have been doing considerable work in the way of towing already this season.

The North Stars defeated the Brainerd city team in the first baseball game of the season yesterday. The final score was 3 to 2, a very close game being played all through. The North Stars were much the lighter team, but had more practice.

The foundation is in and some of the lumber on the ground for a good sized frame store building to be erected by John Stenberg, the Southeast Brainerd shoe merchant, at the corner of 13th and Oak streets. Chas. Nyhnd is erecting the building.

The roads in the country are rapidly drying up and the farmers are busy getting in their crops. The past week has shown great advancement in vegetation. Winter rye is looking exceptionally fine this year and the ground seems in good condition for seeding and planting.

Mrs. Irma Hartley returned Saturday from Colorado where she spent the winter.

SOCIAL WORK IS TO BE DISCUSSED

National Conference of Social Work
Convenes at Minneapolis
June 14 to 20

BRAINERD SENDS DELEGATES

Mrs. W. H. Gemmell is Member of Committee on Membership in Conference

The National Conference of Social Work is planned to meet in Minneapolis June 14 to 20. This is the first time in 25 years that this important conference has met in Minnesota and it likely will not meet here again for many years to come. The state of Minnesota is joining with the city of Minneapolis in planning for the welfare and entertainment of the 3,000 members who are expected to attend the sessions. The scope and value of professional social work and the strength of lay support behind it, will be exemplified at this conference.

Social Work during this winter has met the greatest responsibility in its history. Now is the time to start thinking not only of caring for the inevitable aftermath but of future constructive measures of prevention.

Mrs. W. H. Gemmell who is a member of the committee on membership in the conference presented the matter to the Board of the Community Relief Fund of Brainerd, Dr. J. A. Thabes, president. The suggestion that the Board take out a membership in the interest of putting Brainerd in the map as co-operating in this National Conference and also looking toward the future establishing and developing of this important social work in our midst was favorably received and Mrs. Gemmell, A. R. Falconer and J. J. Cummins were appointed as a committee to collect the funds. The following amounts have been subscribed: Elks, $5.00; American Legion, $5.00; Lions, $5.00; Musical club, $5.00; P. T. A. $5.00.

The sum of $1.00 has been subscribed from several of the P. T. A. groups. Any amount over and above the $5.00 will remain in the Central Council Fund. The $25.00 will allow the appointment of ten delegates to whom all the sessions of the Conference will be open. The membership carries one vote and the receiving of a copy of the proceedings.

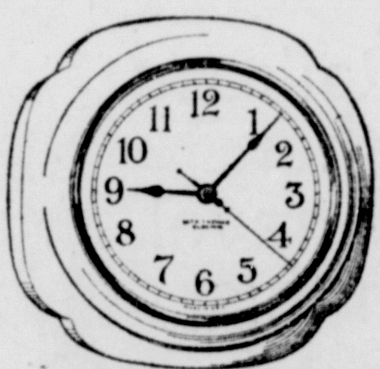

The Health Service society has taken out a $10.00 organization membership. This entitles them to four delegates and a copy of the proceedings. Individuals may also take out memberships, either joint membership in national and state conferences of Social Work with or without a copy of the proceedings or memberships in the National Conference only with or without copy of national proceedings.

It is expected that many throughout Brainerd and Crow Wing county will avail themselves of this opportunity which with most is the opportunity of a life time, and attend the conference.

Further information may be obtained from D. C. Gray, Iron Exchange, Brainerd; Mrs. W. C. Mannis, 215 Kingwood street; or from Mrs. Monica K. Doyle, 214 Citizens Aid Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

The Flateyjarbok is a collection of sagas, once preserved in the island of Flatey, Iceland, but now in the Royal library in Copenhagen. It was written in 1380-1395 by two priests of Iceland and is one of the main sources for the belief that the Norsemen discovered America.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST" By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Bhima Martin, called "Bim," young reporter, is anxious to aid her father's small-town newspaper. She rejects the marriage proposals of Walter Vance, Assistant Chief of Police. Walter asks Bim not to attend a party given by wealthy Emily Hardy, in honor of the decrepit Baron von Wiese and his haughty young wife, Ted Frost, town play-boy and husband of patient Mary Frost, is enamored of the Baroness. As the butler serves wine, the Baroness stares at him. Their eyes meet and, stunned, he drops a glass. Later, on a pretense, the Baroness goes to the dining room and is speaking with the butler, when her maid appears and screams. On the terrace, Bim sees the Baroness slip the butler a piece of paper. Bim leaves early, wondering about the mysterious happenings. Next morning Walter notifies her the Baroness has been murdered.

CHAPTER V.

IT SEEMED an age to Bim that she stood there with Walter's words thundering in her ears. Actually it was only the space of a breath before she gave a little cry and sank upon the chair he pushed against her knees.

"But—but—why it couldn't be! The Baroness—dead? She was so alive—so gorgeously alive! Walter, you're not sure? She was so beautiful—" She began to cry, shaking hysterically.

Walter patted her shoulder and finally took her hands in his warm tight grip, sitting beside her. "Buck up, honey. Bound to happen—this or something. Em plays too loose and fast. Want a glass of water? I saw wine on the side-board."

"No; I'll be all right. It's just so—so sort of awful. Walter, you'd better keep an eye on that terrible old man—the Baron. I think he hated her. And she flirted."

"Yeah? Who did she flirt with?"
"Ted Frost. Oh, don't go blaming Ted; he hadn't a chance after she looked at him. But the Baron—"

Perfect Alibi.

"It's no good, Bim. I'd like to lay it on the old hippopotamus but his alibi is water tight. Listen; I got a call last night around two o'clock that something was wrong up here and hopped to it. No body knew a thing about the call; Em went haywire when I said I'd have a look. Em and Hardy and the Baron were sitting around together and all three swore they'd been there since the party broke up; that was afterward, understood; after we—or rather I—had found the body. It seems the Baron was trying to wangle a loan out of Hardy and they were thick as thieves together. It's what they were talking about 'til two in the morning, Hardy says, and it seems likely enough. The Baron had all he could do to stand on his ratty dogs. I'm willing to bet he wasn't out of his chair all evening. He took it hard, too, yapping about disgrace and all—not, I guess, that he cared what happened to the baggage he married."

"Who was it called you, then?"
"Yeah—who? Em got the servants in for third degree and they all denied they'd been out of bed, the whole kit and bilin' of 'em scared stiff. It was a woman's voice. English—not cockney—no dropped aitches; clipped and precise."

"Em's got two colored maids and the colored cook. And Williams, the red-headed butler. And Em's maid and the baroness' maid."

"They showed up in kimonos and looked sleepy and innocent. Well put them through again this morning when Jim shows. I combed the house first and then the garden. She was lying on the floor in the Summer house with a sheet over her, pulled out and smoothed down as if someone had taken their time spreading it."

Bim shivered and began to cry again. But presently she told about the dinner party—she told everything excepting the part about poor

Bim recognizes the shawl about the body of the Baroness.

Bob which seemed not to matter after all—while he made notes in a little black-bound book. He made her repeat the part of her story which had to do with the Baroness and the butler; she was going over it the second time when Sheriff Jim Reynolds came strolling in with Dr. Sankey, the coroner, at his heels, and sent a questioning look toward Bim.

"She was up here last night," Walter explained.
"Ah!" Bim felt Reynolds' eyes boring through and through her, she felt as an insect impaled under a microscope must feel.

"Miss Martin left early," Walter added hastily. "She stopped in the Station House about half past nine and I took her home myself."

"I see." Steel went out of the Sheriff's gaze which became merely interested. It gave Bim courage to speak.

"I know them all, Mr. Reynolds—all that were at the party excepting the Baron, that is—so very well. I—well, couldn't I help you and Walter? I'll promise not to be a bother. Please let me."

Reynolds shrugged and chuckled. He was a huge man with a round, good-natured face and innumerable chins; he was said to be hard-boiled but Bim, who had known him since she could remember, did not believe it. He gave a rumbling laugh now which rolled up from his stomach and set his chins all shaking as he winked at Walter.
"What'll we do, Chief? Let her in? It appears," he went on, squinting judicially, "that she's got a fairish alibi for herself. Think you could stand her around under foot?"

"Guess I could make out," Walter agreed, blushing furiously.
Reynolds grinned more broadly than ever and wagged his chins. "You're appointed, Bim. Remember now, no talking."

"You don't need to tell me that," Bim was so excited that she hardly could get the words out. "And I do know everybody."

"That's why we're taking you in, young lady. Shouldn't wonder if you'd be a help at that. . . . Well, let's get going."

They filed into the garden, Walter and the Sheriff walking ahead, Bim following with Dr. Sankey. Walter had closed the windows and locked the door of the glassed-in Summer house and now he produced the key and they stepped inside, moving gingerly lest tell-tale fingerprints be destroyed.

Bim caught her breath at sight of what lay on the floor. The sheet had been spread meticulously so that nothing showed of the form beneath—a form which made a pitifully small bulge beneath the white folds.

Before they touched the sheet, Walter and the Sheriff looked about the room. It was furnished with wicker chairs and tables like those upon the terrace. One of the chairs was overturned—one near the door! It had been hurled backward as if someone had run against it in haste and tossed it out of the way.

The divan at the westerly side of the circular building stood slightly out from the wall and was turned to face the back of the garden away from the house. The cushions sagged slightly, one more deeply than the other.

"She sat there," Reynolds said. "Someone with her. Someone heavier, Man probably. Look."

He pointed to the flagstone floor about the divan where cigarette ends lay in a scattering semicircle, and Bim saw that the cigarettes were all of a certain popular brand.

"Those aren't the kind she was smoking at dinner," Bim remarked, and Reynolds shrugged.
She was smoking these here, though. There's red on some of the tips. Used lip-grease, didn't she?"

Bim remembered the vivid scarlet line of the Baroness' mouth, and nodded. "Unless—well, unless someone else was here. Some other woman."

"No," Reynolds was on his knees, examining faint smudges of gray on the flagstones. "There's two sets of prints—woman's and man's. They came along the pebble path, or maybe only stepped on it by the door. This is stone dust. Looks as if the Baroness kept a date out here last night and someone sneaked up and gave her the works. Why? Maybe we'll know by and by. All right, Doc."

Startling Revelation.

They stood there a moment looking down at the sheet. Bim's attention was caught by a laundry mark in one corner; it was one of those marks which become cabalistic through much repetition. Letters had been stamped upon each other until the thing ended in a smudge but she made out a curve at the beginning and a straight line beneath before Walter drew back the square of white and laid it aside.

"The body lay upon the left side with the right arm flung out and up and the face toward the rear of the Summer house. The long, dark eyes were partly closed and the lips, still vivid with rouge, drawn back. It seemed to Bim that there was amazement in the face which was lovely in spite of violent death."

Early morning sunlight struck through overhanging rose vines and set ablaze a great, square emerald dangling from the slain woman's throat and it kindled fire in jewels on her clenched hand. Something sardonic about the glitter of gems in that place of destruction.

But it was not this which chilled Bim, which drained the color from her face and set her trembling. Nor was it the unexpected sight of a dark stain slanting down the shawl—down the gold-and-green and orange flowers embroidered upon the ivory silk of the Spanish shawl—which wrapped the figure on the floor.

"That," she whispered, pointing a weaving finger. "That—the shawl. It wasn't hers. I—I've been seeing it for years. It—the shawl—it belongs to Mary Frost!"

5-MAN CONSERVATION COMMISSION HAS NO FUNDS TO WORK WITH

St. Paul, April 23.—(U.P.)—The new five-man conservation commission has no money with which to operate, it was discovered today.

In the bill creating the new commission, which becomes operative July 1, the legislature failed to make any appropriation for operation of the commission or for the salary of the $5,000 a year commissioner of conservation.

The commission of administration and finance was checking up today to determine where funds for operation of the commission, to pay the commissioner and to cover expenses of his office will come from.

The bill creating the commission merely provides that the money appropriated for the various departments under the conservation commissioner shall go to the conservation department. However, such funds as have been appropriated for these departments are needed entirely for their operation.

The department are drainage and waters, game and fish, forestry and minerals. The five-man commission appoints the conservation commissioner who, in turn, names the directors of the various departments.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Bima Martin, called "Bim," young reporter, is anxious to aid her father's small-town newspaper. She rejects the marriage proposals of Walter Vance, Assistant Chief of Police. Walter asks Bim not to attend a party given by wealthy Emily Hardy, in honor of the decrepit Baron von Wiese and his haughty young wife. Ted Frost, town play-boy and husband of patient Mary Frost, is enamored of the Baroness. As the butler serves wine, the Baroness stares at Bim. Their eyes meet and, stunned, he drops a glass. Later, on a pretense, the Baroness goes to the dining room and is speaking with the butler, when her maid appears and screams. On the terrace, Bim sees the Baroness slip the butler a piece of paper. Bim leaves early, wondering about the mysterious happenings. Next morning Walter notifies her the Baroness has been murdered.

CHAPTER V.

IT SEEMED an age to Bim that she stood there with Walter's words thundering in her ears. Actually it was only the space of a breath before she gave a little cry and sank upon the chair he pushed against her knees.

"But—but—why it couldn't be! The Baroness—dead? She was so alive—so gorgeously alive! Walter, you're not sure? She was so beautiful—" She began to cry, shaking hysterically.

Walter patted her shoulder and finally took her hands in his warm tight grip, sitting beside her. "Buck up, honey. Bound to happen—this or something. Em plays too loose and fast. . . Want a glass of water? I saw wine on the sideboard—"

"No; I'll be all right. It's just so—so sort of awful. Walter, you'd better keep an eye on that terrible old man—the Baron. I think he hated her. And she flirted."

"Yeah? Who did she flirt with?" "Ted Frost. Oh, don't go blaming Ted; he hadn't a chance after she looked at him. But the Baron—"

Perfect Alibi.

"It's no good, Bim. I'd like to hang it on the old hippopotamus but his alibi is water tight. Listen; I got a call last night around two o'clock that something was wrong up here and I hopped to it. No body knew a thing about the call; Em went haywire when I said I'd have a look. Em and Hardy and the Baron were sitting around together and all three swore they'd been there since the party broke up; that was afterward, understand; after we—or rather I—had found the body. It seems the Baron was trying to wangle a loan out of Hardy and they were thick as thieves together. It's what they were talking about 'till two in the morning, Hardy says, and it seems likely enough. The Baron had all he could do to stand on his gaudy dogs. I'm willing to bet he wasn't out of his chair all evening. He took it hard, too, yapping about disgrace and all—not, I guess, that he cared what happened to the baggage he married."

"Who was it called you, then?" "Yeah—who? Em got the servants in for third degree and they all denied they'd been out of bed, the whole kit and bin of 'em scared stiff. It was a woman's voice. English—not cockney—no dropped aitches; clipped and precise."

"Em's got two colored maids and the colored cook. And Williams, the red-headed butler. And Em's maid and the Baroness' maid." "They showed up in kimonos and looked sleepy and innocent. We'll put them through again this morning when Jim shows. I combed the house first and then the garden. She was lying on the floor in the summer house with a sheet over her, pulled out and smoothed down as if someone had taken their time spreading it."

Bim shivered and began to cry again. But presently she told about the dinner party—the told everything excepting the part about poor

Bim recognizes the shawl and the body of the Baroness.

Bob which seemed not to matter after all—while he made notes in a little black-bound book. He made her repeat the part of her story which had to do with the Baroness and the butler; she was going over it the second time when Sheriff Jim Reynolds came stalking in with Dr. Sankey, the coroner, at his heels, and sent a questioning look toward Bim.

"She was up here last night," Walter explained.

"Ah!" Bim felt Reynolds's eyes boring through and through her, she felt as an insect impaled under a microscope must feel.

"Miss Martin left early," Walter added hastily. "She stopped in the Station House about half past nine and I took her home myself."

"I see." Steel went out of the Sheriff's gaze which became merely interested. It gave Bim courage to speak.

"I know them all, Mr. Reynolds—all that were at the party excepting the Baron, that is—so very well. I—well, couldn't I help you and Walter? I'll promise not to be a bother. Please let me."

Reynolds shrugged and chuckled. He was a huge man with a round, good-natured face and innumerable chins; he was said to be hard-boiled but Bim, who had known him since she could remember, did not believe it. He gave a rumbling laugh now which rolled up from his stomach and set his chins all shaking as he winked at Walter.

"What'll we do, Chief? Let her in? It appears," he went on, squinting judicially, "that she's got a fairish alibi for herself. Think you could stand her around under foot?"

"Guess I could make out," Walter agreed, blushing furiously.

Reynolds grinned more broadly than ever and wagged his chins. "You're appointed, Bim. Remember now, no talking."

"You don't need to tell me that," she was so excited that she hardly could get the words out. "And I do know everybody."

"That's why we're taking you in, young lady. Shouldn't wonder if you'd be a help at that . . . Well, let's get going."

They filed into the garden, Walter following with Dr. Sankey. Walter had closed the windows and locked the door of the glassed-in summer house and now he produced the key and they stepped inside, moving gingerly lest tell-tale fingerprints be destroyed.

Bim caught her breath at sight of what lay on the floor. The sheet had been spread meticulously so that nothing showed of the form beneath—a form which made a pitifully small bulge beneath the white folds.

Before they touched the sheet, Walter and the Sheriff looked about the room. It was furnished with wicker chairs and tables like those upon the terrace. One of the chairs was overturned—one near the door! It had been hurled backward as if someone had run against it in haste and tossed it out of the way.

The divan at the westerly side of the circular building stood slightly out from the wall and was turned to face the back of the garden away from the house. The cushions sagged slightly, one more deeply than the other.

"She sat there," Reynolds said. "Someone with her. Someone heavier. Man probably. Look."

He pointed to the flagstone floor about the divan where cigarette ends lay in a scattering semi-circle, and Bim saw that the cigarettes were all of a certain popular brand.

"Those aren't the kind she was smoking at dinner," Bim remarked, and Reynolds shrugged.

She was smoking these here, though. There's red on some of the tips. Used lip-grease, didn't she?"

Bim remembered the vivid scarlet line of the Baroness' mouth, and nodded. "Unless—well, unless someone else was here. Some other woman."

"No." Reynolds was on his knees, examining faint smudges of gray on the flagstones. "There's two sets of prints—woman's and man's. They came along the public path, or maybe only stepped on it by the door. This is stone dust. Looks as if the Baroness kept a date out here last night and someone sneaked up and gave her the works. Why? Maybe we'll know by and by. All right, Doc."

Starting Revelation.

They stood there a moment looking down at the sheet. Bim's attention was caught by a laundry mark in one corner; it was one of those marks which become cabalistic through much repetition. Letters had been stamped upon each other until the thing ended in smudges but she made out a curve at the beginning and a straight line beneath before Walter drew back the square of white and laid it aside.

The body lay upon the left side with the right arm flung out and up and the face toward the rear of the summer house. The long, dark eyes were partly closed and the lips, still vivid with rouge, drawn back. It seemed to Bim that there was amusement in the face which was lovely in spite of violent death.

Early morning sunlight struck through overhanging rose vines and set ablaze a great, square emerald dangle from the slain woman's throat and it kindled fire in jewels on her clenched hand. Something sardonic about the glitter of gems in that place of destruction.

But it was not this which chilled Bim, which drained the color from her face and set her trembling. Nor was it the unexpected sight of a dark stain slanting down the shawl—down the gold and green and orange flowers embroidered upon the ivory silk of the Spanish shawl—which wrapped the figure on the floor.

"That," she whispered, pointing a weaving finger. "That—the shawl. It wasn't hers. I've been seeing it for years. It—the shawl—it belongs to Mary Frost."

OH THESE WOMEN!

By
LEOLA ALLARDCopyright 1931, King Features
Syndicate, Inc.

From women who walk "back streets" I receive letters, so fine that I must admit there are some pretty good women dodging up alleys, while wishing, with a little heart break every day, that they might come out into the sunlight. What they lack, I fancy, is the courage to let go of happiness that has been so long in coming. And yet their happiness is so fraught with misery that I can't see, really, how they can enjoy it. Always there is that light that is low and dead green to spoil the picture, so it can't be real happiness. Always, they tell me, they are a little sad and their patience becomes a sort of martyrdom that isn't pleasant for anyone concerned. The love must be strong indeed to outlast their hurt pride and intense loneliness.

They say, invariably, that parting would be worse than death. For a time, possibly, but there is no fresh, May day feeling equal to the knowledge that you have kept faith with your better self.

I've known women to give up, after waiting for years for some miracle to happen and, in a short time, they found other happiness that made them feel that they had wasted those doubled-up years when the blacks and whites of their lives were all mixed up till they were a dirty grey.

They all tell me, these women who walk back streets, that they suffer from constant depression that never entirely lifts. Is it possible that it wouldn't be a relief to cast that off and breathe freely again.

In most cases these women are past their youth, and that's another factor that holds them. They are afraid of their years. Perhaps there won't come into their lives another great love. But great loves come in later years very often, and a disappointment like theirs ripens them for greater patience and understanding, and makes them fine companions and understanding mates for the man they marry.

One woman who wouldn't walk back streets with any man wrote me that she waited many years to find her happiness but it was worth waiting for and she is glad that she did wait, because having things "right" mean so much to her. All women are like her, but not all of them can wait for happiness. They try to force it, or let themselves in for grief because they are willing to accept half a loaf. Entirely, aside from the moral question, they are not happy women. Probably nine-tenths of them could be happy if they had the courage to break away from what they want and can't get—and there lies the secret of many such infatuations. The world is full of change, and new interests and surprises if only they didn't cling like leeches to a bad arrangement.

As one writer explained to me: "My sleep is filled with dreams of happy impossibilities and I awake to waiting and bitterness."

They all say, "We have so much in common, that's why we stick together."

What they have in common is often a wish for something they can't have. If they married they wouldn't have that cause for loving each other.

Many a woman who walked back streets has married the man who gives so sparingly of his time, and has then left him in a short time because the dreams didn't come true.

Everyone unhappily married fancies they might have made a better bargain. Usually they live to learn that there is no perfect happiness on earth. What they need is to curb their imaginations and eradicate some of their excessive self-pity.

The TOP of every FRIGIDAIRE is a porcelain-topped table

Food on its way into a Frigidaire and food on its way out need not be juggled, or tip-tilted, or inconveniently parked on the distant kitchen table... the flat expanse of showy porcelain atop the Frigidaire makes such a perfect serving shelf!

It is an ideal place to put piping-hot things that should be cooled off before they are exposed to low temperatures... a splendid permanent place to keep the few foods that need not be refrigerated.

And nothing—hot or cold, smooth or scratchy—can in any way scar or mar the lifelong lustre of its diamond-hard Porcelain-on-steel finish.

A conveniently flat, unobstructed serving table top is one of the very real advantages of Frigidaire Advanced Refrigeration. There are many others. We invite you to come in and learn all about them.

PUBLIC NOTICE!

Montgomery Ward & Co.
has filed a complaint with the
Federal Trade Commission
against Unfair Tire Advertising!

... Newspaper and magazine advertisements are being published throughout the country in which nationally advertised tires are compared with a "mail order" tire ... We have been asked if the "mail order" tire referred to is our RIVERSIDE. The reason for this is obvious. Ward's is the oldest mail order house in America. So, when anyone says "mail order," most people naturally think first of Montgomery Ward & Co. No! the tire referred to is not Ward's Riverside!

RIVERSIDES

Are Equal to or Better Than ANY Tires Made Regardless of Name or Price!

Montgomery Ward & Co. is one of the largest distributors of automobile tires in the world. And for 19 years, Riversides have been one of the best known tires in the industry. Millions have been sold. They are made by one of the largest rubber companies in America. They are built to the most rigid tire specifications known. They are the finest quality it is possible to produce. They are backed by the fairest, squarest guarantee ever written, and they sell for less than other nationally known tires of equal quality. These sound like extraordinary claims. But they are facts. And Montgomery Ward & Co. stands behind every word.

The big tire companies have found it impossible to meet Riverside quality at Riverside prices—so most of them now sell what are known as "second quality" tires at the same price we charge for Riversides, a first-quality tire! Furthermore, a recent check disclosed that close to 90% of all the newspaper advertising of the leading tire companies is being devoted to their second-quality tires. Why? Evidently to confuse the reader. The reader notes that the prices are the same as Riversides, and assumes that the quality is the same. But the nationally advertised tires offered at Riverside prices are not equal to Riversides in quality. Always compare QUALITIES as well as PRICES. The table at the right lists some of the best-known first-quality tires that compare with Riversides in quality. YOU compare the prices!

OH THESE WOMEN!

By
LEOLA ALLARDCopyright 1931, King Features
Syndicate, Inc.

From women who walk "back streets" I receive letters so fine that I must admit there are some pretty good women dodging up alleys, while wishing, with a little heart break every day, that they might come out into the sunlight. What they lack, I fancy, is the courage to let go of happiness that has been so long in coming. And yet their happiness is so fraught with misery that I can't see, really, how they sit the misery out long enough to enjoy it. Always there is that light that is low and dead green to spoil the picture, so it can't be real happiness. Always, they tell me, they are a little sad and their patience becomes a sort of martyrdom that isn't pleasant for anyone concerned. The love must be strong indeed to outlast their hurt pride and intense loneliness.

They say, invariably, that parting would be worse than death.

For a time, possibly, but there is no fresh, May day feeling equal to the knowledge that you have kept faith with your better self.

I've known women to give up, after waiting for years for some miracle to happen and, in a short time, they found other happiness that made them feel that they had wasted those doubled-up years when the blacks and whites of their lives were all mixed up till they were a dirty grey.

They all tell me, these women who walk back streets, that they suffer from constant depression that never entirely lifts. Is it possible that it wouldn't be a relief to cast that off and breathe freely again?

In most cases these women are past their youth, and that's another factor that holds them. They are afraid of their years. Perhaps there won't come into their lives another great love. But great loves come in later years very often, and a disappointment like theirs ripens them for greater patience and understanding, and makes them fine companions and understanding mates for the man they marry.

One woman who wouldn't walk back streets with any man wrote me that she waited many years to find her happiness but it was worth waiting for and she is glad that she did wait, because having things "right" mean so much to her. All women are like her, but not all of them can wait for happiness. They try to force it, or let themselves in for grief because they are willing to accept half a loaf.

Entirely, aside from the moral question, they are not happy women. Probably nine-tenths of them could be happy if they had the courage to break away from what they want and can't get—and there lies the secret of many such infatuations. The world is full of change, and new interests and surprises if only they didn't cling like leeches to a bad arrangement.

As one writer explained to me: "My sleep is filled with dreams of happy impossibilities and I awake to waiting and bitterness."

They all say, "We have so much in common, that's why we stick together."

What they have in common is often a wish for something they can't have. If they married they wouldn't have that cause for loving each other.

Many a woman who walked back streets has married the man who gives so sparingly of his time, and has then left him in a short time because the dreams didn't come true.

Everyone unhappily married fancies they might have made a better bargain. Usually they live to learn that there is no perfect happiness on earth. What they need is to curb their imaginations and eradicate some of their excessive self-pity.

The TOP of every FRIGIDAIRE is a porcelain-topped table

Food on its way into a Frigidaire and food on its way out need not be juggled, or tip-tilted, or inconveniently parked on the distant kitchen table... the flat expanse of showy porcelain atop the Frigidaire makes such a perfect serving shelf!

It is an ideal place to put piping-hot things that should be cooled off before they are exposed to low temperatures... a splendid permanent place to keep the few foods that need not be refrigerated.

And nothing—hot or cold, smooth or scratchy—can in any way scar or mar the lifelong lustre of its diamond-hard Porcelain-on-steel finish.

A conveniently flat, unencumbered serving table top is one of the very real advantages of Frigidaire Advanced Refrigeration. There are many others. We invite you to come in and learn all about them.

PUBLIC NOTICE!

Montgomery Ward & Co.
has filed a complaint with the
Federal Trade Commission
against Unfair Tire Advertising!

... Newspaper and magazine advertisements are being published throughout the country in which nationally advertised tires are compared with a "mail order" tire ... We have been asked if the "mail order" tire referred to is our RIVERSIDE. The reason for this is obvious. Ward's is the oldest mail order house in America. So, when anyone says "mail order," most people naturally think first of Montgomery Ward & Co. No! the tire referred to is not Ward's Riverside!

RIVERSIDES

Are Equal to or Better Than ANY Tires Made Regardless of Name or Price!

Montgomery Ward & Co. is one of the largest distributors of automobile tires in the world. And for 19 years, Riversides have been one of the best known tires in the industry. Millions have been sold. They are made by one of the largest rubber companies in America. They are built to the most rigid tire specifications known. They are the finest quality it is possible to produce. They are backed by the fairest, squarest guarantee ever written, and they sell for less than other nationally known tires of equal quality. These sound like extraordinary claims. But they are facts. And Montgomery Ward & Co. stands behind every word.

The big tire companies have found it impossible to meet Riverside quality at Riverside prices—so most of them now sell what are known as "second quality" tires at the same price we charge for Riversides, a first-quality tire! Furthermore, a recent check disclosed that close to 90% of all the newspaper advertising of the leading tire companies is being devoted to their second-quality tires. Why? Evidently to confuse the reader. The reader notes that the prices are the same as Riversides, and assumes that the quality is the same. But the nationally advertised tires offered at Riverside prices are not equal to Riversides in quality. Always compare QUALITIES as well as PRICES. The table at the right lists some of the best-known first-quality tires that compare with Riversides in quality. YOU compare the prices!

AMATEUR SAILOR MEETS DEATH ON LAKE MICHIGAN

WILLIAM E. KEGG SAILED ALONE
AT MIDNIGHT IN A 22-FOOT
SLOOP

MET STORM, CLUNG FOR DAY TO GUNWALE OF SINKING
CRAFT

Chicago, April 23.—(P)—A story of how an amateur yachtsman sailed into Lake Michigan alone at midnight in a 22-foot sloop, met a storm and clung perhaps for a day to the gunwale of the sinking craft was pieced together today after his body was recovered by coast guards who had searched for him for hours.

The body of William E. Kegg, 31, was found floating beside his half submerged craft three miles from shore. He had almost completed his daring trip from South Haven, Mich., when the boat foundered. His body was kept afloat by a life preserver. Physicians said he probably had remained alive 24 hours in the water.

Kegg was an engineering safety inspector for an insurance company. His father, W. H. C. Kegg of Mansfield, Ohio, came to Chicago today to take the body home.

SCORES OF CITIES INVESTIGATING EXECUTIVES

by common pleas court judges that Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas is too friendly with the Ohio Edison Company. Thomas, in turn, has started disbarment proceedings against Judge David G. Jenkins, Judge J. H. C. Lyon and Attorney Andrew M. Henderson on charges they accepted money from the Ohio Edison Company.

At Akron former Police Judge L. Earl Cox goes on trial May 11 on a charge of misappropriating funds.

Warden Philip Paterno of the city house of detention in New Orleans recently was dismissed after a grand jury investigation of the detention home.

Six former city and county officials will go on trial Monday at Asheville, N. C., on charges of conspiring to defraud in connection with the failure of several Asheville banks in which $8,000,000 in public funds was lost. The officials were forced to resign earlier this year.

The Municipal Utilities Protective League of Seattle is circulating petitions now for recall of Mayor Frank Edwards on charges that he retained George B. Avery as superintendent of the street railway when Avery was incompetent; that he attempted to hamper and cripple the city light system by dismissing the veteran Superintendent J. D. Ross; that he purchased $10,000 worth of office furniture without bids for requisitions and that the police department, under his direction, permits gambling.

One city councilman and his business partner in Atlanta, Ga., are serving sentences on the chain gang as result of the investigation under way there for 17 months. Bribery, extortion and jury tampering have been investigated. Thus far 53 indictments have been returned against aldermen, councilmen, the city clerk, city physician and purchasing agent. Eleven have been found guilty. Ten pleaded guilty. Seven men were acquitted and 19 still are to be tried.

Park Commissioner George F. Fisk of Buffalo, N. Y., was removed this week after Mayor Chase Roess had asked for his resignation on grounds that after a year's probation he had failed to make good. Fisk declined to resign. Frederick Becker, deputy superintendent of schools in charge of finances there, resigned after the board inquired into his approving several split requisitions for lockers and furniture. Becker has been asked to appear before the board but is out of the city.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 23.—The Hennepin county grand jury today resumed its investigation of alleged protection of vice, gambling and bootlegging rings with the calling of six additional witnesses.

The inquiry today centered on whether a series of stag parties were held during the last two years in loop halls under police protection.

Grand jury members who conducted a raid on a downtown stag party recently learned that Nicholas Gilsdorf, charged with conducting an indecent performance, was given a 90-day work house sentence as a result of their raid.

St. Paul, Minn., April 23.—A list of five witnesses was given the county attorney's office today for questioning by the county grand jury investigating charges that commissioners were paid members of the city government for the purchase of traffic signals. Details of why negotiations with the Griswold Sign Co. were stopped when the St. Paul Daily News threatened to get out an injunction against the purchase of the signals, were being sought.

AMATEUR SAILOR MEETS DEATH ON LAKE MICHIGAN

WILLIAM E. KEGG SAILED ALONE
AT MIDNIGHT IN A 22-FOOT
SLOOP

MET STORM, CLUNG FOR DAY TO GUNWALE OF SINKING
CRAFT

Chicago, April 23.—(U.P.)—A story of how an amateur yachtsman sailed into Lake Michigan alone at midnight in a 22-foot sloop, met a storm and clung perhaps for a day to the gunwale of the sinking craft was pieced together today after his body was recovered by coast guards who had searched for him for hours.

The body of William E. Kegg, 31, was found floating beside his half-submerged craft three miles from shore. He had almost completed his daring trip from South Haven, Mich., when the boat foundered. His body was kept afloat by a life preserver. Physicians said he probably had remained alive 24 hours in the water.

Kegg was an engineering safety inspector for an insurance company. His father, W. H. C. Kegg of Mansfield, Ohio, came to Chicago today to take the body home.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 23.—The Hennepin county grand jury today resumed its investigation of alleged protection of vice, gambling and bootlegging rings with the calling of six additional witnesses.

RIVER POLLUTION HEALTH QUESTION

State Board of Health Handed by Dr. J. A. Thabes Sr. Confers With Governor

Governor Floyd B. Olson requested the state board of health to meet with him late today with the aim of solving the Twin Cities river pollution problem, a United Press dispatch said today. Dr. J. A. Thabes, Sr. is president of the board and will attend.

The session will follow the routine business of the board's quarterly meeting.

"I believe the board of health has broad enough powers, together with governing bodies of St. Paul and Minneapolis to solve the sewage problem and to end this constantly growing menace to public health," the governor said.

"It is my purpose to co-operate with the board in every way possible to find the proper solution and to take immediate steps to put the necessary machinery into motion."

The governor said he regretted the necessity of vetoing the sanitary district bill but he said he could not approve it because it was "unjust and inequitable."

Minneapolis, Minn., April 23.—Minneapolis' city council today discussed plans for constructing a sewage disposal plant on the Minnesota river bottoms near Fort Snelling.

N. W. Ellsberg, city engineer, told the councilmen he would ask for appointment of a special committee to confer with members of the charter commission relative to an amendment enabling the plant's construction.

Under present plans, an amendment together with an initial bond issue would be submitted to the voters in June.

Ellsberg said the proposed plan has the approval of the state board of health. St. Paul has opposed the building of the plant at Fort Snelling.

IN SOLE POSSESSION OF FIRST PLACE IN AMERICAN LEAGUE TODAY

VICTORY COSTLY, FOR IT DEPRIVED THEM OF SERVICES OF BABE RUTH

By LEO H. PETERSEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, April 23.—(UP)—The New York Yankees were in sole possession of first place in the American league today, but the victory that put them there yesterday was a costly one, for it deprived them of the services of Babe Ruth for at least a week.

Ruth pulled a tendon in his left thigh as he attempted to catch Tom Oliver's fly in the sixth inning of the Yankees' 7 to 5 triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

Washington's 5 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Philadelphia Athletics while Cleveland was losing to the Chicago White Sox enabled the Yankees to climb into the leadership.

Lefty Grove held the Senators safe all the way with Gronin's home run in the second frame accounting for Washington's only tally. Grove allowed but seven hits and struck six while the A's got to Hadley for four runs in the first inning.

Behind the eight-hit pitching of Pat Caraway, the Chicago White Sox whipped Cleveland 10 to 2. The White Sox clubbed harder, Jablonowski and Thomas for 14 hits.

The other American league game scheduled, between the St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers was postponed because of rain.

The St. Louis Cardinals maintained their lead in the national league by defeating Cincinnati, 3 to 2. Gelbert's double after Bottomley and Watkins had singled scored the winning tally in the eighth. S. Johnson and Lindsey held the Reds to four hits.

Brooklyn's weary Robins made their 1931 home debut by taking another lacing, this time at the hands of the Boston Braves, 4 to 0. Old Tom Zachary held the Robins to four hits. Phelps, on the mound for Brooklyn, turned in a good performance but his mates continued their sloppy fielding contributing four errors. In the ninth inning Manager Robinson showed his disgust over the weak hitting of his "sluggers" by sending in pinch hitters to bat for Babe Herman and Lefty O'Doul.

The New York Giants celebrated their official home opening with a 5 to 4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. A three run rally in the seventh, featured by Critz's home run, brought McGraw's men the victory.

Pittsburgh and Chicago, who were scheduled to play the other national league game, were rained out.
